World's Week

BY HAROLD L. WEIR

Associate editor of The Edmonton Bulletin and author of the daily column "From the News"

In spite of Winston Churchill's explanatory speech in the House of Commons denouncing the strategy that resulted in the loss of Crete, considerable dissatisfaction still exists among those army units which were concerned in this engagement. This dissatisfaction is spreading with increasing bitterness throughout the British Isles.

Mr. Churchill complained, with some petulance, of the small mindedness of those who demand an explanation of every episode of the war. The British press, however, reminds the Prime Minister that

Harold L. Weir

There is no tendency in Britain to ask for the retirement of Mr. Churchill. There is a strong demand for the retirement of some weaker ministers.

Anxious speculation centres this week about the consequences of the Syrian campaign which was rendered mysterious in its earlier stages by the apparent distinction of the Nazis to participate in it. This German reticence was partially explained in three ways.

First, it was reported that the Germans considered Syria too far from their air bases to be made the scene of successful operations by the Luftwaffe. They did not want to undertake an engagement in which they might court defeat.

Secondly, they desired the French to bear the whole weight of the defence so that they would be forced into open warfare with the British.

Thirdly, the Germans wanted to see Syria fall to the British so that the isolationists in the United States would materialize for further propaganda against entering America aid to Britain while she was up to her old 'imperialistic and aggressive' tricks.

If it is true that the Germans feared to engage the British in Syria because they believed could not get their fighting planes into effective action, it must be a principle of their strategy not to attempt invasion where they do not control the air.

Such a principle would explain their failure to attempt the invasion of Britain. Moreover, adherence to this principle would render an attempted invasion of Britain an impossibility since there is not the remotest chance of the Germans ever gaining control of the air over.

To some extent, the British march into Syria has tended to revive the flagging energies of American Britanophobes.

But these latter ladies and gentlemen have been treading warily because they have a wholesome respect for the powers assumed by President Roosevelt under his emergency proclamation.

Moreover, the American administration is not likely to permit much adverse criticism of the British advance into Syria when the necessity might arise at any time for an advance, along similar lines, into 'Jahar.

Nor would the American public regard any new outbreak of pro-Nazism with complacency.

It was established formally just a few days ago that it was a German submarine which sank the U.S.S. Robin Moor. Americans remember that it was this sort of thing that led the United States into war in 1917. German propaganda has become a hazardous and profitless business in the United States of America.

HELPING OURSELVES

Here and there throughout the Dominion of Canada, some citizens have allowed themselves to become bewildered by large figures which represent the cost of this War to Canada. Apparently, they scan the headlines, note the billions of dollars which are being spent to fight Hitler, and then sit back and moan something of this kind:

"How in the world will the government of Canada ever find the money to repay the people who have invested in War Savings Certificates and War Loan Bonds."

What some of these people overlook is the fact that the Government of the country was not fooling when it declared that Canada would operate on a "Pay as you go" policy.

There was one point which the Minister of Finance brought out in his Budget Speech on April 29, 1941, that should be re-emphasized to allay foolish fears. The Minister reported that, excluding the assistance which this country is giving Great Britain, Canadians in this fiscal year are providing, by their tax payments and other Government Revenues, 79 per cent of our War and non-War budgetary expenses. In other words Canada is exercising a very great measure of control over the amount of debt being piled up for future payment.

In the light of conditions all over the world, it is not too extravagant to say that the security behind Canada's War Savings Certificates and War Loan Bonds is just about the best in the world today. The only real threat against this security is a victory for Hitler.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE TO START JULY 1ST

Unemployment Insurance becomes an actuality in Canada from July 1st. For the workers who are subject to periods of unemployment through no fault of their own, it will mean the difference between being on relief or charity and the self-respect of having provided for their own welfare through a plan insurance savings.

The plan is one of co-operation between the employer, the employee and the Government. Each makes a contribution based on the weekly wages earned by the employee. To the amount contributed by the employer and the amount deducted from the employee's wages, the Government adds one-fifth of the total, and pays for the cost of operation. These contributions are similar to insurance premiums, and accumulate against the day when the worker, either male or female, becomes unemployed.

This, briefly, is the Unemployment Insurance Plan which becomes a law of Canada, just as it has been a law in Great Britain for more than thirty years. With the experience of the British Act as well as the examples of other countries to draw upon, the Unemployment Insurance Commission has created a plan which should operate with the least inconvenience to the employer and to the greatest possible benefit to the workers.

Both employers and employees should familiarize themselves with the terms of the plan which will be made available by the Postmaster in the locality you live.

The World of Wheat

Mustard plants are bad weeds. The roots of the mustard are much more extensive than the roots of the wheat plant. The mustard plant never grows very high above the ground, and so its destruction is often neglected, but if farmers could see its great mass of roots going down five feet or more, and could see the vast quantity of precious moisture that a single mustard plant consumes, they would not rest until mustard was eliminated from their farms.

A good summerfallow will induce most of the mustard seeds in the top three inches of soil to germinate and grow, and then the plants can be cultivated and destroyed, but we must not forget the seeds that are in the bottom three inches and that cannot be killed until the land is again plowed and these seeds brought up near the surface to germinate.

It taken, therefore, two good summerfallows, with a crop in between, to destroy all the mustard seeds in the top six inches of soil. The important thing is to stop the plants from setting to seed, for each single plant may scatter over one hundred living seeds.

In recent years the chemical Cynamid, applied as a dust, has been found to be most effective for destroying mustard.

Wheat Deliveries

Producers should carefully study the Government's 1941 Wheat Policy to determine which alternative will bring them the best returns.

It will be necessary for producers who wish to deliver their 1940 crop and collect farm storage to do so before August 1st, 1941, when the 1941 crop delivery quota becomes effective.
